

$100,000,000 MERGER OF

FOR THE FIRST TIME PLANS TO ESTABLISH GREAT CIRCULATION

the acquisition of newspaper properties, assured a representative of the Boston Evening American who called on him in New York that the Greenhut newspaper consolidation plan has absolutely no connection with the Power Trust nor with Hahn Department Stores, Inc.

Schwartz declared that the proposed merging of the smaller dailies of the nation was "distinctly a financial enterprise, based on a sound business and economic basis."

Policies on Papers Will Not Be Changed, He Says

He denied that there was any aim or desire to use the papers for political, advertising or any other special interests. He said the plan was to buy the directing genius and good-will of newspapers with 10,000 or more circulation and to retain the publishers and their personnel, without change of editorial or news policy.

"This is purely and simply a business proposition for financial gain, without hidden or ulterior motives," added Mr. Schwartz. "There is nothing secret about it. Of course we haven't been shouting from the rooftops because the consolidation is still in a formative stage. There are details to be worked out."

"It has nothing to do with the Power Trust. Their interests and ours are foreign. We would be foolish to tie up with them. Nor has the merger anything to do with the Hahn stores chain. I can see how that impression might arise because of Eugene Greenhut's origin and development of that organization, but this is an entirely independent venture and he has great hopes for it."

"The bankers back of the newspaper merger are enthusiastic about it. The man who is to head this newspaper consolidation is an active newspaperman of tried worth and genius. He will be at the head of a general council or board of directors which will act in an advisory capacity, but will not interfere with the local administration or policies of the respective newspapers in the chain."

Letters to Publishers Throughout the Country

"I don't feel that I should reveal the identity of the directing newspaper head at this time nor can I say whether the central headquarters will be in New York, Chicago or elsewhere. The plan will revolutionize the newspaper business. It has been favorably received by the majority of the publishers and editors approached. Letters outlining the plan have been forwarded to newspapers with 10,000 or more circulation throughout the country."

"I do not feel privileged to state how many newspapers have already been approached or how many newspapers have already been acquired."

"We have offered to buy various daily newspapers in New England. The firm of Whitcomb & Co., real estate brokers, 10 State st., Boston, covering the New England field for us. "Why did we select real estate firm instead of a banking or brokerage firm? It was not for secrecy. We selected Whitcomb & Co. because it has a very high reputation and it has been our policy to use as agents in this matter firms of standing in the financial community."

"What we do in is liquidate frozen assets. We pay spot cash for newspaper properties but we pay the books of the newspaper must show that it is doing no better than acquiring any real estate."

Many Publishers See Life Dreams Realized

"Many publishers approached have welcomed the plan, because they see life dreams realized. Under Mr. Greenhut, the publisher can realize a substantial cash gain on his property and continue to run it with his old crew at the same salary, without change in his newspaper policies."

"What we buy is the success, genius and good will of local publishers who have a standing in their communities. The public is benefited rather than harmed, in that the newspapers are to be maintained as of old, but with better news and editorial policies, and what is more the properties will be given over to the public in the sale of stock."

"The publisher is rewarded for his life's work and is not only paid a substantial sum but he can see that we insist that he remain at his post, to preserve his hold, because we desire his personal and good will."

"We consider an asset of the most valuable type the experience, personality and good-will of the publishers in the achievement and success of the newspaper consolidation. A few days ago I telephoned a publisher who seemed indifferent. He said he would give me a half hour of his time. The publisher had been approached for hours and I was the one to determine his fate."

"You can see in state, Mr. Schwartz, how many daily newspapers in New England are already being acquired."

"I prefer not to at this time."

"Will you tell who the bankers are that are backing the newspaper consolidation?"

"No, that also is confidential."

"Edward Whitcomb & Co. Company in Boston declined to discuss the matter and the Boston Evening American declined to consult with the reporter said."

"Naturally that is confidential. Whitcomb & Company and our other agents, although they are not making public confidential (confidential) while the plan is in the formative stage," said Mr. Schwartz, "we are acquiring newspapers in a way similar to acquiring a business."

Letter Tells Terms of Newspaper Merger

THE circular letter sent to publishers in New England and throughout the country to buy the smaller daily newspapers outlines the plans and aims of the merger. Those in the New England territory were issued over the firm signature of Whitcomb & Co., realtors, 10 State st. The letter follows:

"We have been authorized by important banking interests to negotiate for the purchase of a number of unduplicated daily newspapers to be consolidated into a coast-to-coast newspaper chain which, as we are informed, is proposed to be the outstanding consolidation in the newspaper field."

"It is intended to confine participation to publications having in excess of 10,000 circulation whose earnings over a period of the last three to five years reflect successful management."

"The financial basis of the consolidation is of utmost primary importance. That is to say, you would be most interested in the immediate and potential benefits which would accrue to you should you feel inclined to have us acquire for you an offer for the purchase of your newspaper. The prospective purchasers have stated that the soundness of any such offer of purchase would be determined by the facts, all of which according to their statement have been provided for this proposed consolidation, namely:

"(a) We are permitted also to present to you the following statements from the prospective purchasers:

"(a) 'Banking arrangements have been completed with one of the largest banking houses in the country. This banking firm suggests that they be put together initially about 20 newspaper properties, but that subsequent acquisitions be added as good properties are available.'

"(b) 'The presidency of the corporation has been offered in an offer to the president of the corporation in the past few years has never been equalled.'

"(c) 'The situation companies will be the best of the country. The majority of the directors are at all times, be made up of practical men, and on a basis reflecting true value.'

"(d) 'The owners of a property will be permitted to sell their property at a profit, and the profits shall be paid for the property of equal worth, the last profits of which are smaller.'

"(e) 'The properties acquired now than for properties acquired at a later date.'

"(f) 'An active market on the New York stock exchange or other securities exchange would be maintained for all securities acquired by the corporation. The corporation will be permitted to sell its securities at a profit, and the profits shall be paid for the property of equal worth, the last profits of which are smaller.'

"(g) 'The corporation will be permitted to sell its securities at a profit, and the profits shall be paid for the property of equal worth, the last profits of which are smaller.'

U.S. GOVERNMENT

Women Aware of Tariff Evil, Says Mrs. Norton

By MRS. MARY T. NORTON

Representative in Congress From New Jersey

Washington, June 12.—Much criticism has been directed at women since we have had the vote, because of what some people consider the indifference of women in governmental problems.

I have always contended that women were not indifferent, but that a great many, and this is particularly true of the millions who are not affiliated with clubs, did not know how to approach the problem of government; and therefore, appeared to have no personal interest in the problem.

This would seem true to be borne out by the great number of letters I have received from women all over the country in reply to my speech against the exorbitant tariff bill recently passed by the House.

Women everywhere throughout the country understand just what a dollar can purchase, and are finding it more difficult to make "ends meet" than ever before. Therefore, when you tell them that if this tariff bill becomes law they will pay more for everything, they must buy it in this particular problem of the government.

We know that a protective tariff is necessary, but an excessive tariff is quite another thing. Quite as objectionable in the country as a whole is a tariff giving unfair preference to one state or section of the country.

When women analyze this bill and find an increased tariff on "sugar, beef, lamb, fresh milk, sugar, dried, clothing, building materials, bristles and brushes, etc., items too numerous to mention, it is difficult to make them understand that the Republic is not concerned with the welfare of the working woman and the women of the country.

The salary of the average office man or woman has not kept pace with the high cost of living and the women of the country now are obliged to make the "day savings" work a miracle, understand what an increase in clothing and food means to the family, this will be the greatest argument presented since we have had the vote to bring women to a realization of their potential strength and the necessity of developing that strength when representatives are to be elected.

New York, June 12 (AP).—Graduates of Manhattan College at Catholic institution, today had before them as an inspiration the life and character of Alfred Russel Smith, who died after a long illness at the age of 80.

RESCUE FOR PRISONER IN BRIGHTON

Four persons were carried out windows to safety, a fireman was injured and several families were driven out early today, when a two-alarm fire threatened an apartment house area near Commonwealth ave., Brighton.

An entire block of apartment houses was endangered by the flames which started at 144 Southland rd., between Lanark and Commonwealth.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Buckley and their three children, the only occupants of the burning building, a three-story affair, were aroused by smoke and flames.

Neighbors called the children, Lorraine, 9, Audrey, 7, and Stuffy, 3, through the window to safety, and they followed themselves when cut through the door was blocked by flames and smoke.

Fireman James L. Carroll of Ladder 11 was injured fighting the fire and taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Smoke belted the homes nearby caused many residents to flee. The fire is believed to have started on the second floor and swept through the building before it was discovered.

Brookline Girl and N. Y. Broker Wed

A honeymoon in Bermuda is planned by Philip Gartner, New York real estate man, and Miss Lillian Nicholas of Brookline, who were married in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza Hotel by Rabbi Abrams of Temple Center. The ceremony was an attractive one, under a canopy of roses.

PROBATIONER ON FOOD IN WEATS

Within the shadow of the elevated structure in Jamaica Plain live four children, the oldest only seven, whose only food since Saturday has been bits of dry bread provided through the charity of neighbors.

Life has been hard on these innocents. They do not understand. They don't realize that for months their father was out of work, and that when he did get a job and drew his pay, a heartless thief stole the money as he hastened home to "get the kids something to eat."

They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hamilton, 3379 Washington st. Two of them go to school, one in the first grade and the other in kindergarten.

THE MEANEST THIEF. Just before Christmas Hamilton lost his job as a laborer. It was a tough time to be out of work and Hamilton tramped the streets looking for another job. Christmas was a bleak one in that household.

Until three weeks ago, Hamilton continued his hunt for a job, filling in here and there for a day or cutting wood at the Wayfarer's Lodge for enough money to buy a bit of food.

Then luck seemed to turn for him. He got a job again as a laborer at $4 a day. Two Saturdays he came home with his pay, sent some to each of his creditors and bought some necessities for his family.

But last Saturday Dame Fortune turned her head again. Hamilton drew his pay and started home. When he reached the home room tenement, he reached in his pocket, but the money was gone. A pickpocket had robbed him.

"We didn't know what to do," Mrs. Hamilton said. "We had wanted to give some money on our way to school, but we didn't have any."

"Our credit has been stopped. I don't blame the people either. They're been awfully good to us and they can't afford to be giving us things for nothing."

"But the children had to eat. I put them to bed last Saturday night and I didn't know what to do. A neighbor gave us a loaf of bread and the woman in the grocery store gave us some milk."

"And that's all they've had. Since then, the only thing we've had to eat is what we've bought to eat when she's going to school. So should Arthur, who is six and in kindergarten."

EIGHT QUIZZED ON EXCHANGE ST.

Eight witnesses appeared today before the Suffolk County Grand Jury investigating the Exchange st. widening project.

Gaunt Want Envelops Home

Mrs. Charlotte Hamilton hears the pitiful story of the shoe that "won't keep the hurt out" for Alfred, 4½ years old, as Walter, 2½, listens solemnly and munches a bit of stale bread. The family is in dire need at 3379 Washington st., Jamaica Plain. There are two other children and a jobless father. And the only food is bread. (Staff photo.)

POLICE TRAP 2 IN CAR THEFT

Two 16-year-old youths, both living in Heath st., Roxbury, and one a student at English high school, were arrested downtown today within two minutes after they are alleged to have stolen an automobile.

Tragic Officer Arthur McLean of Traffic 50 and Patrolman William Carnes of the Lagrange street station, saw the boys experimenting with the car's gearshift, and switched.

When the youths finally started themselves and started the machine away from its parking place on Kneeland and Lincoln sts., the officers ran from the roadway in which they had been hiding and looked on the running board.

The boys were turned over to juvenile court.

Plan Hears for 2 Ward 17 Solons

Saved $265,000 in taxes by Representatives Frank J. McFarland and Owen A. Callahan of Ward 17 in obtaining a legislative refund of money assessed against land owners on the Southern Artery, residents in that ward are planning a memorial to the two men.

The refund was passed as one of the first bills of the Legislature, and Governor Allen signed it Saturday. He called the two men into his office and congratulated them on their achievement, which, he said, was a good instance of how legislators could and ought to serve their constituents.

Parrot Vanishes From Home in Somerville

Parrot, parrot—who's got the parrot? The answer to the question is up to the Somerville police department, to which Jacob Schwartz of 111 Tremont st. complained that someone had stolen his pet parrot from the back door stop.

Sergeant James M. Lynch, who has recovered scores of missing dogs, cats, birds and babies, is on this job.

YOUTH IS HELD IN 5 AUTO DEATHS

Louis Weiner, 18, of Thornton st., Revere, was held for the grand jury by Judge Waldorf in Criminal District Court today as a result of the deaths of five Revere high school youths when an automobile said to have been driven by Weiner was wrecked on May 21st at Point of Pines bridge, Revere.

Weiner was arraigned on five counts of manslaughter in addition to a charge of operating as to endanger lives and driving without a license. He was held on one charge under $200 bond.

The young men killed in the accident were Sabag Jimlinian, Elmer J. Bandler, Bernard Galt, and two others.

Fireman Wins $42 Relief Assn. Suit

A victory was won today by the relief association of firemen of Somerville, whose claim of $42 against the local firemen's relief association for damages to an eye while fighting a fire was paid by Judge Sturtevant.

The judge added $120 costs for good measure. This decision ended a unique legal tangle which started when the association's treasurer refused to obey an order of the relief organization to make a refund to the fireman for medical expenses.

The fireman was hurt when a platter fell in his eye during a fire.

Memorial Drive Traffic Tied Up

Traffic on Memorial drive, Cambridge, was disrupted for nearly an hour today when a fireman fought a stubborn grass fire on a vacant lot near the Harvard University campus.

The flames threatened several large advertising boards. Huge volumes of smoke billowed from the site of the fire.

The fire was extinguished without much damage.

GRL COLLECTOR ON 'EL' RESIGNS TO BE DOCTOR

WORKED WAY TO OBTAIN EDUCATION

One of the happiest girl graduates in Greater Boston today is Miss Lillian M. Mahoney of 23 Puckard ave., Somerville, who has resigned her position as Elevated collector at South Station under after successfully passing the examinations of a local medical school.

Miss Mahoney's graduation was the culmination of four years of hard work, during which she combined eight hours of work in her booth in the subway station with long hours of study at night.

She plans to spend another year as an intern in Hahnemann Hospital, Scranton, Pa., after which she will take the State examinations for registered physicians.

WORKED FOR NINE YEARS. The only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis J. Mahoney, the progressive woman physician has three brothers, two of whom are members of the Somerville fire department, while her father is a motorist with the same company by whom she was employed.

Her determination to become a physician was carried out in the face of obstacles which would have caused many girls and young men to give up in despair.

Endowed with good health and a strong constitution, Miss Mahoney applied herself to the task and, earning doubly to it until her goal is in sight. One more year will see her in a position to begin the practice of medicine and the amelioration of the ill of mankind.

Each day but Sunday Miss Mahoney put in eight hours at the South Station Under, where she has been employed for the past nine years, and an equal length of time at the medical school.

NO TIME FOR AMUSEMENT. There was no time for theater or other forms of recreation which tend to lighten the burdens of daily toil. Miss Mahoney had no opportunity for relaxation, but her diligent application to work at last received its reward.

"Dead" 'Scn $10,000 in Will

Because his mother believed him dead when she made her will, William W. Draper, formerly of Wayland, Mass., has a $10,000 share in her estate by a Supreme Court decision handed down today.

The mother, Mrs. Anne W. Draper, died April 5, 1923. In her will, probated June 28, 1923, no mention was made of the son, the testator believing he had died.

He was the only son and left home when his mother married a second time. After the will had been allowed for admission to probate court to determine whether his mother intentionally omitted his name from her will or whether the omission was caused by mistake or fraud. The will bench found it was intentional.

ARRESTS NEAR MATHESON SLAYING

—Friday, January 21, 1927, in a field shortly before 10 p. m. The girl from which police have been told by present and former employees of the restaurant owner, was frequently seen in the eating place and often was in the company of the proprietor.

Until today, the strictest secrecy was maintained by the investigators in their renewed hunt for the Matheson murderer, but when the new investigation became known to the Boston Evening American, Capt. Smith and Special Officer Kelley made admissions readily.

It was learned also today that the couple and child of the girl, Mr. and Mrs. Angus M. Ritchie, with whom she made her home, have returned to the same West Roxbury house at 325 Haverhill, where they resided shortly after the slaying.

Since leaving the Baker at home, the Ritchies have been living in Roxbury.

"I believe that this case eventually will be solved," Capt. Smith declared yesterday, when asked regarding the renewed search for the murderer, but he declined to say in detail.

Miss Matheson, a native of Roxbury, formerly of Cape Boston, N. B., had been in Boston for about 14 months when she was slain in the snow-covered field while returning home from work on the night of January 21, 1927.

have been lifted bodily with apparent ease by these winged raiders.

This theory is something more than a simple fact, the afternoon said. He pointed out that mothers for weeks lately have been urged to keep children in their beds, especially in the coldest districts with open spaces.

The parents of the child are personally directing the searching party, but themselves are near at the point of exhaustion because of their refusal to leave the child.

A possible explanation offered by some is that the child is frightened by the noise made by the searchers, and hopes at their approach. The parents, however, feel that the boy would respond to his name, which is being shouted in many sections.

Amelia Says Girls Able to Fly Alone

New York, June 12 (AP).—Amelia Earhart was brought up over the idea of an open $1000 contest for women fliers. After announcement of a proposed race from Los Angeles to Cleveland, came suggestions that the women carry men navigators or start this side of the Rockies.

"Rubbish," said Miss Earhart. She added she, Elmer Smith, Lady Heath and Louise McPherson, would not start unless it was a real sporting contest.

Lillian Gish Sued Off the Calendar

Los Angeles, June 12 (AP).—Upon agreement of both defendant and plaintiff, the $2000 suit perfected by Charles H. Swift against Lillian Gish actress, today had been removed from the calendar.

A possible explanation offered by some is that the child is frightened by the noise made by the searchers, and hopes at their approach. The parents, however, feel that the boy would respond to his name, which is being shouted in many sections.

'DECEITFUL,' N. Y. ATTORNEY GENERAL WARNED READING

editor of the Old Colony Trust Company, who made his first appearance as a witness before the tribunal.

Heard added that during the legislative investigation of Reading's activities, the Attorney-General, Paul H. Revere, would be called as a witness, told him he would turn Reading if he testified their talk occurred the last of May.

Revere's appearance was a surprise, as he did not testify before the legislative committee whose investigation resulted in Reading's resignation from the office of attorney-general.

Questioned by Atty. Frederick W. Mansfield, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, the banker said he had been a friend of Reading for some years.

He said he talked with the attorney general about May 25 at 26 when Reading said he was in a position to bring $100,000 to the Old Colony Trust Co. from New York. The witness said they discussed the amount of interest the bank was prepared to give over a period of twelve months, and finally 7 1/2 per cent was decided on.

Revere, quoted Reading as saying the Decimo Club was all right, that he had investigated it, and that the Decimo Club was not a general and been given assurance that the organization was given a clear bill of health in that city.

The banker said the money was deposited July 22, and produced a certificate of deposit. He said it was returned to him by Reading, as the Old Colony Trust Co., officially until Aug. 23, but as early as Aug. 20 the club was negotiating its withdrawal.

REVEALING TO READING

He added that according to instructions from the New York lawyers, the money was forwarded to the Bank of Italy in New York. The witness said he knew that when the money was on deposit in his bank, it was out of the jurisdiction of New York.

In reply to questions Revere said he recalled the legislative hearing at the State House. Reading, he said, telephoned and asked if he had been summoned.

Reading then asked, he testified, what date he would see them with regarding the deposit of the money. The witness said he replied he would testify to one of the three dates in May, either the 21st, 25th or 26th.

"Mr. Reading promised I was wrong," he said, "and that I would do him a great injustice if I testified to that effect. I told him I didn't want to do him any injustice that he was my friend. I felt I was in a position to do him a great injustice if I testified to that effect."

READING DISTURBED

Q. What was the tone of his voice? A. He was considerably disturbed when I told him the money was not in the bank.

Filene's Cold Storage for FURS

The latest Scotch joke is on the moth

We are not talking about the Scotch tailor, who, finding moths in his shop, trained them to eat out the buttonholes.

We are talking about the thousands of people, Scotch at heart, who have realized that it is decidedly more economical to spend a few dollars storing their furs at Filene's than to take chances on having them ruined altogether. They have the laugh on the moth.

Are your furs in storage? If not, learn the lesson of safety without paying for it bitterly and expensively.

Call HANCOCK 3800, and let us come for your furs. Or leave your order at the Information Desk, street floor. Or bring them directly to the vaults in our Cambridge Building, on the Esplanade, or to the Fur Shop—fifth floor.

Filene's has the LARGEST privately owned fur storage vaults in New England.

Filene's has separate vaults for the storage of fur trimmed cloth coats.

Filene's was the first in Boston to deliver furs "while-you-wait" at the vaults.

Filene's was first to open a home-like Reception Room in connection with its vaults.

JAIL FORMAN 'DRUNK' IN BED AFTER CRASH

Following an automobile collision in Cambridge, Peter L. Walsh, 44, of Harvard St., Brighton, handed his license and registration to the other driver and went home, where the result he drew an aggregate of 12 months in East Cambridge court today.

Walsh was found guilty of drunkenness and operating under the influence of liquor, and was given three months on credit. He appealed and was held in $200.

James Hanah of Cambridge testified that Walsh's machine was in collision with his on June 6. He said that Walsh, who had been drinking, handed him his license and registration and disappeared.

Hannah notified the police who then went to Walsh's home and found him drunk in bed. He denied he had any drinks before driving, but admitted he took several after getting home.

SEIZE LIQUORS SHEA BARN, BROOKLINE

While a prominent member of the Brookline police department—a next door neighbor—stood by evading surprise, federal prohibition agents today seized 500 gallons of assorted liquors in a barn at High and Cypress sts., Brookline.

According to Agent Thomas De Angelis, the barn is on property owned by James B. Shea, former park commissioner of Boston, who now is in Canada.

The raid followed arrest of two men, traced from the scene and taken into custody when alcohol is alleged to have been found in their cars.

John Watson, of Chelsea, ex-Chatterbox, was traced to George St., Medford, before he was placed under arrest and 35 gallons of alcohol alleged to have been in the car.

Frank Sheehan, of Hudson St., Roserville, was followed to Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, and there taken into custody. According to the agents, he had 35 gallons of alcohol in his machine.

Following the arrests, a warrant to search the Brookline barn was obtained. In the raid that resulted, the federal agents seized champagne, Chatterbox rum, Borden's rum, Scotch whisky concentrates and alcohol.

Hub Fans Are Divided as to Honesty of Wrestling

"SONNY" ON LEAVE

ON COMEBACK DRIVE

MAKES A SEEK ZEREMBO AND SCREEING FOR VICTOR

FILED WAIT FOR GONG

His honesty, it is admitted that he is not a professional wrestler, but a champion in the ring. He is a return match with the former holder is away of an implied if not actual, match of honor. Should Sonny be obliged to meet Lewis in a return match? Are various state commissions which control wrestling, perfect in implication, the rule of an opponent, simply because he will not be a professional wrestler? It is a question of honor.

New York Asked to Name Lewis as Champion

New York, June 11.—Strangler Lewis announced today he had filed a challenge with the New York Athletic Commission asking that body to compel Gus Sonnenberg to meet him. Lewis requested that he be named title holder if Sonnenberg persists in dodging him.

JOHN RUSKO, Cleveland baker boy, hopes to use Jimmy Maloney as a stepping stone to a return bout with Max Schmeling.

A new initiative has been provided by Promoter Eddie Mack for the principals in the heavy weight match which will pay off the bid of the open as boxing season at River View next Monday night, when Jimmy Maloney of South Boston clashes with John Rusko of Cleveland for the Hub brawler has returned anguished to bring Max Schmeling, the German champion, to the Hub to meet the winner.

While Mack always has held a contrary with Schmeling for a bout in this city, he balked at the German purring Con O'Kelly here but now it is learned that the Irish champion is planning an immediate departure for home, and for the reason Mack is planning to carry his case before the boxing board again in an effort to have the winner of Monday night's bout oppose the German.

Not in many months has a heavyweight feature been raised in the Hub which has aroused such a variety of opinion as this meeting between Maloney and Rusko, and while Maloney was a question mark in the ring, he is a great favorite. The Cleveland baker boy feels almost certain that he will win in fact he has broadcast the fact that he will win by the knockout round, for the reason, it would not be surprising to see Rusko go into the ring as the favorite.

BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME, EVART

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Evart Epp, our local reality man, is telling this one on himself. He was returning from Oklahoma, where he had closed a nice little deal. He got part in cash. As he came up to a town, Ewart, and to make a purchase. He thought he had just made the sale of the merchant, and he pulled a $100 bill. He noticed the man acted queer and stopped and stepped aside. Presently a policeman came up. The man was sure Ewart was a bank robber. Explanations were soon made.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

If you were right, old man, I'd be the first to admit it.

JOE ALVAREZ, wrestler, I believe Sonnenberg is a good fighter, but I do not believe he should be allowed to hand back his own property. The champions of sport, whether it is boxing, wrestling or something else, should be in and take a chance with the best men in the ring. Sonnenberg has been so often in all parts of the country against weak opponents, if he were a weak opponent, he would have been beaten down. I believe he is a good fighter, and I believe he should be allowed to hand back his own property.

JOE ALVAREZ, wrestler, I believe Sonnenberg is a good fighter, but I do not believe he should be allowed to hand back his own property. The champions of sport, whether it is boxing, wrestling or something else, should be in and take a chance with the best men in the ring. Sonnenberg has been so often in all parts of the country against weak opponents, if he were a weak opponent, he would have been beaten down. LEGAL MINDED

By J. J. McLAUGHLIN

OS ANGELES, June 12—And so these stage actors who are called the heights in musical comedy stardom, are willing to forsake fame and fortune to reach to take up the study of law.

Dani Gendell, who is at present headlining with Dave Apollon at Law's State Theater this week, is the young woman hankering for a legal career.

"I have always been fascinated by law," declares Miss Gendell, "and when I have finished my present tour, I am planning to study with the hope that some day I may be admitted to practice in the courts of Massachusetts."

Miss Gendell is a native of Brighton, where her mother, Mrs. Mary Gendell, resides at 55 Stuten.

She made her first stage appearance with David Warfield when 12 years old in "The Return of Peter Grimm."

She has also appeared with Ethel Barrymore in "The Pirates of Penzance," and with Fred Stone in "Crisis Cross."

Rush East Boston Tunnel; Council Should Act

Everyone agrees that the proposed $16,000,000 East Boston traffic tunnel will be of incalculable commercial advantage and convenience to the City of Boston and to communities lying to the north of the city. The way is prepared by legislation for immediate start upon the work, subject to formal approval by the Boston City Council.

At the present time the order for the acceptance of the legislative act is tabled following the suggestion of a Council member that too little is known as to the exact locations proposed for entrances and exits. The suggestion is made that four or five men with possible advance knowledge of these details, will be able to buy up land in advance and gain enormous profits as a result of their sale to the City.

As a matter of fact it is doubtful that owners of real estate will be found overanxious to sell their property to speculators at bargain prices.

It is essential for the continued prosperity of Greater Boston and New England generally that work on the tunnel be started at the earliest possible moment. Unless the City Council accepts the act on or before July 1, the present act becomes null and void, and new legislation will be required in future sessions of the general assembly.

The people of Boston want the tunnel, and the members of the City Council should consider their civic duty to approve the measure at their meeting next Tuesday when it comes up for reconsideration.

Can Jail Million Dollars

Confirming the six months' sentence of Harry Sinclair for jury shadowing, the Supreme Court again gives the lie to the statement that "you can't send a million dollars to jail."

Sinclair and his associates, Henry Mason Day and W. Sherman Burns, take their medicine. The people of the United States will not gloat over them in their misfortune. But the people believe the lesson that no man is above the law, whatever his wealth or position, is a salutary one.

Sinclair and his associates forgot it. The country was in danger of forgetting it.

A year and a half ago the Washington Herald, a Hearst newspaper, uncovered the facts on which the Supreme Court now convicts Sinclair and his fellows.

In the public interest the Herald withheld publication of its exclusive information until it could lay it before the court for action.

This course was termed by the New York Times: "A notable public service, not one which all newspapers have adopted, and not only a cause for congratulation in the newspaper world, but also the furnishing of a model for imitation by others."

The Supreme Court now makes that service effective.

It demonstrates that money is no insurance against a free and upright bench, aided by a free and enterprising press. It proves that, despite sinister efforts to get a grip on both, there are still honest newspapers in America.

It serves notice that the people still have bulwarks against which the oily millions of oil millionaires, the powerful resources of power trust magnates, are alike powerless.

And, fellow citizens, in these facts there is reason for nation-wide gratitude, linked with a nation-wide resolve that those bulwarks shall not be broken down.

We Are Prosperous

A survey, ordered by President Hoover, proved that prosperity and the standard of living in this country are far higher than they have ever been.

Prosperity, as the President's report shows, is due to the fact that luxuries are produced in quantity production and freely used by all of the people.

The bathtub and the automobile are no longer luxuries, but absolute necessities.

It should be remembered to what an extent installment purchases have made this possible.

Instead of waiting two years to save the price of an automobile, the citizen buys the automobile now and enjoys it while he saves to pay for it.

President Hoover, whose success is based on thorough mental training, plus innate ability, emphasizes always the importance of education. The report reminds you that this nation spends two thousand five hundred million dollars a year on public and private education.

Expenses for education have increased two hundred and fifty per cent within ten years!

A Vacation Danger

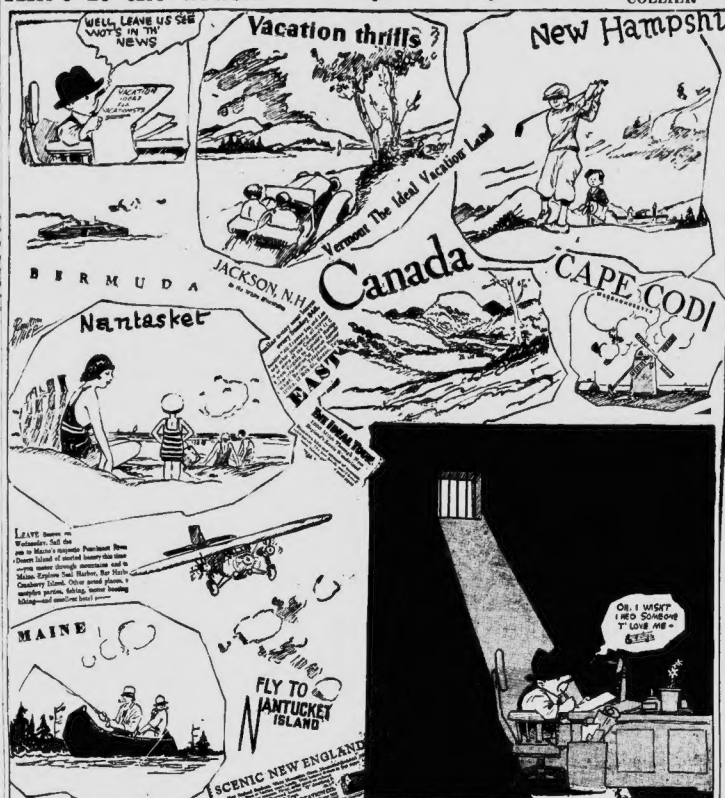

Vacation time is at hand. The woods and fields and streams are calling. The appeal of the outdoors arouses a universal response.

Health and happiness are to be found in New England's lovely open spaces, the rolling Berkshires, the rugged Green and White Mountains, picturesque Cape Cod and the varied shorelines of Massachusetts.

Be vigilant, however, in the matter of drinking-water. Pure water flows in abundance throughout the New England vacation land, but it does not follow that all open streams and pools are free from pollution.

AVOID DANGER BY MAKING CERTAIN OF THE PURITY OF THE WATER WHICH YOU DRINK WHEN YOU AND YOUR FAMILY ARE AWAY FROM HOME.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

BENITO MUSSOLINI may have his drawbacks as a dictator of women's fashions. But sometimes I wonder if, as a husband, he might not be rather refreshing, not to say comforting, to have around the house.

At least, with a husband like that, you would know just where you stood. And you wouldn't be afraid to wonder about the fate to Reno or the climate of Mexico.

There would be no family arguments in a house where there was only one vote, one opinion, one pair of knickerbockers and one brand of cigarettes.

And no trouble with the children. You'd never have to say: "Now, Ben, haven't you got the nerve in lay down the law to Clara?"

Or, "You haven't a sense, you young thing, to let Billy kick back to you?"

Neither would there be any serious problem, nor any discussion as to who would be the cook or go out and blow up the janitor.

Now any scolding as to who should have the first look at the newspaper mornings. Perhaps you wouldn't care to read a newspaper anyhow.

All this I never have to stall off a salesman or decide about accepting a dull invitation. You'd just say: "I'll take my husband. And he'll never make you the goat of the night by saying, 'I'll see what the wife says' when he wanted to get out of going."

After all, life must be very peaceful for the wife of a man who knows his own mind—and has the nerve to SPEAK IT.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

JOHN B. WATSON, the famous psychologist, doesn't believe that men will marry fifty years from now. He'll tell you why in the June number of the Comopolitan magazine. You'll be surprised! And maybe considerably bothered, for he backs up his opinion with some arguments which are hard to refute.

To begin with he shows that marriage isn't something that just has to happen, like teething or growing toe-nails and whiskers. For a very considerable portion of human history, marriage didn't happen at all. When it did, it took on various forms now considered decidedly de trop in polite society. Polygamy, for example—polygamy—infant marriages—group wives.

All of these forms of marriage had their root in some social necessity. Men took several wives because, under certain conditions, there were more women than men. Women took several husbands because under other conditions, such as now prevail in some parts of Tibet, there were more men than women.

ALWAYS MARRIAGE WAS SHAPED TO MEET SOME DEFINITE HUMAN NEED. NEED OF HOME—NEED OF HELP—NEED OF A PLACE TO REAR THE CHILD. BUT NOW, ACCORDING TO DR. WATSON, WE HAVE OUTGROWN THESE NEEDS FOR WHICH MARRIAGE WAS AN ANSWER.

Medbury Says—

By JOHN F. MEDBURY

THERE is so much red tape in Washington that the government hospitals are now using it for bandages.

Female Dumbbells. The country girl who thought she had taken out a building permit to her her neck hanging.

Among The Illiterate. New York state is now giving habitual criminals the Hamlet ruck.

Take It Or Leave It. Vegetables are getting cheaper. Asparagus has come down two cents a bunch. But should you still sell for seven dollars a foot.

Social Accomplishments. High-class restaurants are now giving storm signals with their grapefruit.

Financial Note. Thugs nowadays not only want your money and your life, but they're beginning to demand your insurance.

Excuse It Please. The wages of sin is about the only salary that a married man is allowed to keep for himself.

Our Own Vandulver. Hubby! I can't go out tonight. I have a terrible case of indigestion. Wife—That's all right, nobody will see it with your vest on.

On June's return! Each bird with song is now a thrill. And daisies garden every hill. Life's flood at crest. Waves all the world with levelness.

Blue sky, green fields alike. One day are built. One day are built.

Each bird with song is now a thrill. And daisies garden every hill. Life's flood at crest. Waves all the world with levelness.

New York Daily Mirror

NEW YORK, June 12.—It is always a bit of a mystery why so many New Yorkers are so successful in New York when they get out of it. Aside from the flash of fleeting fame, their lives are a depressing drab. I think especially of Earl Carroll, the young theatrical producer.

His career was temporarily clouded by a tragic incident, but he returned to old scenes to achieve new triumphs. Already he has rolled up a sizable fortune. Yet moves about like Ravana's ghost from one second-rate hotel room to another. He owns an automobile and mixes with only a handful of intimates.

For many years Henry L. Doherty, the public utility magnate, lived in a dingy walk-up apartment in abandoned Bridge at, on the island's lower tip. At night when traffic desolated the section, he would sit at a desk, and pipe organ, or perhaps make a five-cent round trip on a Staten Island ferry.

With success, the biggest dream almost invariably turns to a life of simplicity and isolation. They shun crowds. So little known is the life of J. P. Morgan that on the rare occasions when he attends the theater there are few heads to turn as he walks down the aisle.

Charles F. Frohman during his most fruitful years, frequently walked brilliantly lit Broadway unimpeded. At a dinner party either evening a dozen men and women who have traveled all over the world admitted they had never seen any of New York's most famous faces.

A Sunday paper recently discovered a gentleman who had achieved a remarkable reputation as a man who had never seen a modern dance and outside of "Hallelujah" had not seen a play since quitting college. He was the actor who played a dog in that queer turn known as "Barrow" in "The Village."

It is here he hides away on his seasonal returns to civilization, and to the tenants he is known as the "traveling man." In a city signified by its glitter and prancing about off, these shy celebrities offer a pleasant relief. They are so different.

The New Yorker's smug superiority over his fellows in the outlying suburbs. Today at the opera, for instance, there was a disdainful reference to a distinguished gentleman from Kansas as "just a Kansas type."

Charles F. Frohman during his most fruitful years, frequently walked brilliantly lit Broadway unimpeded. At a dinner party either evening a dozen men and women who have traveled all over the world admitted they had never seen any of New York's most famous faces.

A Sunday paper recently discovered a gentleman who had achieved a remarkable reputation as a man who had never seen a modern dance and outside of "Hallelujah" had not seen a play since quitting college. He was the actor who played a dog in that queer turn known as "Barrow" in "The Village."

It is here he hides away on his seasonal returns to civilization, and to the tenants he is known as the "traveling man." In a city signified by its glitter and prancing about off, these shy celebrities offer a pleasant relief. They are so different.

The New Yorker's smug superiority over his fellows in the outlying suburbs. Today at the opera, for instance, there was a disdainful reference to a distinguished gentleman from Kansas as "just a Kansas type."

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
C. N. JERRY, states that bathing beauties are hampered by too much clothing.

Capt. Dykes is not a snob. But nobody can swim if they don't wrap themselves in all the blankets in the army.

Capt. Dykes says it is not healthy to wear baggy bathing dresses and raccoon coats on the beach.

The Captain believes that daughter should hang her clothes on a hickory limb.

He also believes the woman should wear that dress.

And that America should conserve its forests.

He advocates the one-piece bathing trowsers of the backless type.

That's the kind they wore down at Palm Beach last winter. We got our eyes burned.

The backless swimming jersey is not better because it hasn't got a back.

We cannot describe it. Fortunately, it is not of that thing, you will be here in for your self.

Anyway, you are walking down the beach.

Excuse It Please. The wages of sin is about the only salary that a married man is allowed to keep for himself.

Our Own Vandulver. Hubby! I can't go out tonight. I have a terrible case of indigestion. Wife—That's all right, nobody will see it with your vest on.

On June's return! Each bird with song is now a thrill. And daisies garden every hill. Life's flood at crest. Waves all the world with levelness.

Blue sky, green fields alike. One day are built. One day are built.

Each bird with song is now a thrill. And daisies garden every hill. Life's flood at crest. Waves all the world with levelness.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

In straitened circumstances it is easy to despise life; he bares himself, and then, when he is alone, he can endure to live. —Martial.

Be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play with great difference at the stars. —Van Dyke.

Though ages may pour out their wisdom's treasure, there is no treasure more precious than pleasure. —Byron.

The difference between landscape and landscape is small, but the difference between the beholders. —Emerson.

Boston American's Policies For Boston-New England

- FOR BOSTON:
 - 1—Clean streets.
 - 2—Elimination of traffic and parking problems.
 - 3—Be-river for honest business.
 - 4—An A-port SECOND TO NONE.
 - 5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

- FOR NEW ENGLAND:
 - 1—Weld the six States into a solid and united New England, thus creating a community consciousness.
 - 2—Encourage intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
 - 3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique Winter Playground of the Nation.
 - 4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
 - 5—Develop in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
 - 6—Assist New England agriculturists to better marketing methods.
